Classification Organizer

This organizer provides structure to information that requires classification. The general name of the group of items is written at the top of the organizer. On the next level are written the different groups that make up the general group. On the third level, the specific details of each group are written. Illustrations, diagrams, and pictures are required components of this graphic organizer.

Guiding questions:

• What are the specific members of the group?

• Are there things that might go into multiple groups?

• Is there another way to classify this information?
