WHO MAY PARTICIPATE?

Studies show that the majority of students who apply to the four-year college system fit into the category of upper middle class, with college educated parents. The majority of students also live in cities or large suburbs. Students who do not fit into these categories are classified as under-represented at the college level. If you fall into this classification as a student have the following:

- Satisfactory citizenship, decent work habits and willing to commit your self to a minimum of two hours homework and studying every night.
